RUGBY:

A. J. LAWRENCE, PRINTER,
MARKET PLACE.

PREFACE.

It is hardly necessary to state that the Compiler of an Annotated Register of Rugby School does not pretend to entire accuracy or completeness. His object has been to place upon record the doings of Old Rugbeians, with a notice of the principal distinctions gained by them, and, although delay in the present publication would have insured greater accuracy and completeness, the Compiler has thought it desirable that, as the work has been called for by many Old Rugbeians, it should appear in its present form, leaving imperfections to be corrected and omissions supplied in a future Edition.

The Compiler has availed himself of the published researches of the late REV. THOMAS LAWRENCE BLOXAM, which will be found acknowledged by the initial of that staunch supporter of the School; and he desires to record his recognition of the assistance of many Old Rugbeians.

The present Register is a transcript of the Headmaster's Book, in which the names of all new boys are entered,—with the exception that discovered errors have been corrected.

Old Rugbeians and friends of the School will greatly oblige by notifying to MR. LAWRENCE, Bookseller, Rugby, any inaccuracies or omissions in the present Volume. They are also requested to forward to him any statements worthy of record with regard to Old Rugbeians who have entered the School since the commencement of DR. GOULBURN'S Headmastership in April, 1850, with a view to insertion in the Second Volume, which it is proposed to complete to the current date.

1881.

THOMAS CROSSFIELD, A.M.

Ingenii et industriæ fructus contulit ad usus reipublicæ et informandos puerorum animos, provinciam æque arduam ac utilem ; ad quam tamen administrandam mirè aptum effinxerat natura, perfecerat usus et disciplina. In obeundo munere emicuit diligentia, humanitas, fides, in toto vitæ curriculo, antiqua morum simplicitas, modestia singularis, animus vere liberalis ambitioni et lucro aversus, amicorum commodis intentior quam suis. Scholis Daventriensi et Prestonensi per plures annos præfuit, pari laude et successu præceptor vigilantissimus, Rugbæam demum invitatus, fama præeunte et commendante splendide dux coloniæ huc migravit; summis omnium votis, summâ omnium expectatione quam morte solâ fefellit, die Aprilis 27^o anno Æræ Christianæ, 1744, ætatis suæ 36^o.

Margaretta Uxor M.P.

Juxta conduntur cineres Thomæ Crosfield filii,
Nati 12^o Maii 1742, Denati 6 Martii 1748.

Maria Crosfield, eorum filia, obiit undecimo die Januarii, anno Domini,
1802.

1744 William Knail, D.D.
Resigned in 1751, when he was elected Fellow of Queen's College, Oxford.

1751 John Richmond, D.D.
Resigned in 1755. He died January, 1816, at Newnham, in the County of Southampton, at the advanced age of ninety-eight.

1755 Stanley Burrough, M.A.
A Taberdar at Queen's College, Oxford. Appointed on his resignation in 1778, to the Rectory of Sapcote, where he died, April 12, 1807, aged 82. The following Epitaph exists in Sapcote Churchyard, Leicestershire:—

Here lie the remains of the

REV. STANLEY BURROUGH, M.A.

Who from the year 1759 to 1778 honourably filled
the important station of Head Master of Rugby School.

He died April 12, 1807, aged 82,

Having been 28 years Rector of this Parish.

Here also lie the remains of Mary his wife;

She departed this life Sept. 12, 1801, aged 86.

1778 Thomas James, D.D.
Fellow and Tutor of King's College, Cambridge. Educated at Eton. He resigned in 1794, and was preferred to a Prebendal Stall in the Cathedral Church of Worcester. He died in September, 1804, and his remains were interred in the Cathedral. The following Inscription, written by his most distinguished scholar, the late Dr. Butler, Headmaster of Shrewsbury School, afterwards Bishop of Lichfield, beneath a Memorial Sculpture by Chantrey in the School Chapel:—

^a Ambrose Cave was the 3rd son of Sir Thomas Cave, Knight, who was created a Baronet in 1641 for his distinguished services in the Civil Wars. He held the rank of a Brigadier in the Life Guards, and was unfortunately slain, in 1690, as he was sitting peaceably in his chair in public company, by an officer of the name of Biron, whose life he had frequently spared, though many provocations had caused frequent skirmishing between them; and in return for his generosity, Mr. Biron ran his sword through the Brigadier's back as he sat in his chair, of which wound he soon died. The sword was left in his body, but the offender fled, and was never discovered.—B.

^b The Right Hon. General John Burgoyne, M.P. for Preston. He commanded the British army in America in 1777, and he also held the distinguished post of Commander-in-Chief in Ireland in 1782, when he was made a Member of the Privy Council. He was the author of "The Heiress," "The Lord of the Manor," and "The Maid of the Oaks," &c., and was a Dramatist of reputation.

^c Succeeded his grandfather as 12th Baron Dudley, and 3rd Baron Ward, and died during his minority in 1704, being succeeded by his posthumous son.

^d Died under age.

^e Thomas Carte is supposed to have been born at Clifton-upon-Dunsmore, near Rugby. He took his degree of M.A. at Cambridge after leaving Rugby, and entered into orders. His first publication was a defence of King Charles I. from the charge of being privy to the Irish massacre. At the accession of George I. he refused the Oaths. He was afterwards secretary to Bishop Atterbury, and when that prelate was committed to the Tower, a reward of £1000 was offered for apprehending Mr. Carte, who escaped to France, where he remained till Queen Caroline obtained permission for him to return to England. He next published a History of England, in 3 vols. folio. The 4th, which ends with 1654, appeared after his death. His accuracy was such that he has been called "the Historian of Facts," and Hume borrowed largely from the work. Besides the above he published a collection of original letters and papers relating to the affairs of England, in 2 vols. 8vo., a History of the Revolutions of Portugal, and some other pieces. His manuscripts are in the Bodleian Library. Carte died in the year 1754, and was buried in a vault in the chancel of Yattendon Church, Berkshire. His works, however, constitute his only monument.—B.

^a Vicar of Orton-on-the-Hill, Leicestershire. Joined the rebels at Preston in the year 1715, and read prayers to them as their chaplain. He made his escape to London when the rebels were defeated, but was taken in disguise, and convicted of high treason at his trial in Westminster Hall. On the 13th of July, 1716, he was conveyed on a sledge from Newgate to Tyburn, where he was hung, drawn and quartered. He went to the place of execution in the canonical habit of the Church of England, a circumstance which strongly excited the feelings of the spectators in his favour.—B.

* Born at Newton, near Rugby. He left the School under unfair suspicions imputed to him of stealing his housekeeper's cock, and he became a Clerk in the Excise, but soon apprenticed himself to a printer. He corrected the Gradus ad Parnassum, and wrote for several newspapers. He then held a clerkship in the Post Office. In 1731 he projected the Gentleman's Magazine, which still has a worthy reputation, and he engaged Dr. Samuel Johnson to assist him in editing it. He died in 1754, and was buried at St. James' Church, Clerkenwell. Dr. Johnson has written his biography.—B. The following epitaph on his father's tomb is in Rugby Church.

Near this place lies the body of
 JOSEPH CAVE,
 who departed this life Nov. 7, 1747,
 aged 80 years.
 He was placed by Providence
 in an humble station,
 but Industry abundantly supplied his wants and Temperance blessed him with Content and Health.
 As he was an affectionate father
 he was made happy in the decline of life
 by the deserved eminence of his eldest son,
 EDWARD CAVE,
 who, without interest, fortune, or connexions,
 by the native force of his own genius,
 assisted only by a classical education
 which he received in the Grammar School
 in this town,
 planned, executed, and established,
 a literary work called
 the Gentleman's Magazine,
 whereby he acquired an ample fortune,
 the whole of which devolved to his family.

^a John Parkhurst, the celebrated Lexicographer, was born at Catesby Priory, near Daventry, in the year 1728. He was Fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge, and sixth Wrangler in 1748. In 1762 he published "An Hebrew and English Lexicon, without points: to which is added a methodical Hebrew Grammar, without points, adapted to the use of learners." And in 1769 he published "A Greek and English Lexicon to the New Testament, to which is prefixed a plain and easy Greek Grammar." He was also the author of an answer to Dr. Priestley on the Pre-existence of Christ, 8vo. and a pamphlet against John Wesley. He died in 1797, and was buried at Epsom, in Surrey, where a tablet is placed to his memory.—B.

^a Succeeded his father (p. 24) as 6th Baronet in 1778. A Trustee of Rugby School. High Sheriff for the County of Leicester, 1780. His daughter Sarah claimed and recovered the Barony of Braye, which again fell in abeyance. He died May 31, 1780.

^b John Mansel in early life joined the Regiment of the Third Dragoon Guards, and rose to the rank of Major-General. He had the command of a brigade of heavy cavalry in the Duke of York's campaign in 1794. Being impatient on one occasion of an undeserved imputation on his zeal, the General, when the French attacked the Duke of York's army, on the 26th of April, devoted himself to death, and his troops animated by his example performed prodigies of valour. He came up with the enemy in the village of Cawdry, charged, and completely defeated them. He then rushed at the head of his brigade against a battery of fourteen pieces of cannon, placed on an eminence behind a deep ravine, into which many of the front rank fell. He passed the ravine with a considerable body of men, and charged the cannon with inconceivable intrepidity and complete success. This event is said to have decided the day: but at the mouth of this battery the brave and worthy General, after having three horses killed under him in the course of the day, received his death wound; one grape shot entered his chin, fracturing the spine and coming out between the shoulders, and another broke his arm to splinters. His son and aide-de-camp, Major John Christopher Mansel (also a Rugbeian, see year 1781), anxious to save his father's life, darted forwards, but was wounded and taken prisoner. On the 29th, the General was buried in a redoubt at the head of the camp. Six Generals supported the pall, and the Duke of York, the Stadtholder, the hereditary Prince of Orange, and all the officers of the army attended the funeral.—B.

^a Rector of Abington and Grandborough, Warwickshire. Died, 1783.

^b William Bray was born at Shere, in Surrey, on the 7th of November, 1736. He was descended from Sir Nicolas Bray, the faithful minister of Henry the Seventh, and in the tenth year of his age was placed at Rugby School. Whilst at school he found some difficulty in gratifying his passion for reading, there being in his days no regular bookseller in Rugby. An itinerant bookseller from Daventry was however accustomed to open a stall at Rugby on market days, to whom the boys resorted. A number of the Rambler, which was then in the course of publication, having fallen into Bray's hands, he ordered the same from the Daventry bookseller, who mistaking his commission procured all the numbers which had then appeared: these, amounting to the sum of nine shillings, completely exhausted Bray's purse, and, as he in after-life was wont to declare, nearly ruined him. On his leaving school he was articled to an attorney, and at the termination of his clerkship he obtained a situation in the Board of Green Cloth, which he continued to hold for near fifty years. In 1801, on the death of Mr. Manning, who had commenced a History of Surrey, Mr. Bray undertook to complete the same, and composed the whole of the second and third volumes of that work, the latter of which was published in the year 1814. In 1803 he was elected Treasurer to the Antiquarian Society. Several of his papers are published in the Archæologia. For many years before his death he was the oldest Rugbeian living, and until he was obliged to desist through age, was a constant attendant at the Rugby School meetings in London, and always retained an affectionate regard for his own School. He closed a life actively and usefully engaged at the age of ninety-seven, on the 21st December, 1832, at Shere. A mural monument is erected to his memory in the church of Shere.—B.

^a Sir Ralph Abercromby was born in the year 1738. He was descended from an ancient family in the county of Banff. When ten years old he was placed at Rugby. While there, "Duke William" of Cumberland, the hero of Culloden, was on one occasion passing through Hillmorton and Dunchurch in his carriage-and-six, a circumstance which old inhabitants of Rugby used to speak of as one of the most memorable events of their lives; and it is recorded that all the boys in the School ran over to see him with the exception of Abercromby. On leaving Rugby he obtained his first commission as a Cornet in the Guards, and a Lieutenantcy in 1760. In 1762 he became Captain in the 3rd Regiment of Horse, in which corps he rose to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in 1773. Major-General in 1787, and given the command of the 7th Regiment of Dragoons in the following year. He was employed on the Continent under the Duke of York in 1796. He commanded the advance guard in the action of Cateau, for which he was honourably mentioned in the Duke of York's despatches. Wounded at Nemeguen, and conducted the retreat of the troops out of Holland in the winter of 1796. The next year he was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Forces in the West Indies, where he took possession of several French and Dutch settlements. On returning to Europe he was rewarded with the Order of the Bath, and made Governor of Fort George and Fort Augustus, and Lieutenant-General in 1797. He was next fixed on to take the command of the troops in Ireland, where he exerted himself with great ability in suppressing the rebellion. He was lastly called upon to take the command of an army to dispossess the French of Egypt. Here he landed with the troops March 8, 1801, and defeated the French at Aboukir after a bloody action. On the 21st of the same month was fought near Alexandria a memorable battle, in which the English were again victorious, but with the loss of their gallant general, who died the 28th, on board the ship which was conveying him to Malta, in the great church of which island he was buried with military honours. A marble slab with an inscription denotes the place of his interment. A public monument was voted to his memory, and a peerage and pension bestowed upon his family. In 1774 Sir Ralph represented the County of Kinross in Parliament, and continued in that capacity till the general election in 1780. He was father to the Speaker of the House of Commons. Such was the affection Sir Ralph entertained for the place of his education, that he was actually on the point of setting out to pay a long contemplated visit to his old school, when he was stopped by a notification of his appointment to the command of the troops embarking for Egypt, where his life was so gloriously closed.—(Vide Memoir published by his grandson, Lord Dumferline).—B.

^b Archibald Stewart Douglas, afterwards Lord Douglas, of Douglas and Bothwell Castles, who, after one of the greatest litigations ever known, succeeded to the immense possessions of his uncle, the last Duke of Douglas, 1769. The Duke's only sister, Lady Jane Douglas, married at the age of forty-seven Colonel Stewart, afterwards Sir John Stewart, Bart., by whom, at Paris, in 1748, she had twin sons, Archibald and Sholto, the latter of whom died an infant. But the family of Hamilton, who were the next collateral heirs male, suspected the truth of this birth under such extraordinary circumstances, and infused their suspicions into the mind of the aged Duke that the children were suppositious. But at length his Grace seems to have been finally satisfied. He made proper enquiries concerning the birth of Archibald, and saw and conversed with the woman servant that went over to France with his sister, and who was said to have been present at her delivery. It was about this time that an old Scotch servant, probably sent by the Duke of Douglas, came to Rugby. The boys were assembled together in the School by Mr. Burrough, and this servant, who had never yet seen young Douglas, was introduced amongst them. In a short time he was enabled to identify Archibald, and select him from the other boys from his likeness to the Douglas family. At length the Duke was convinced of his sister's honour, of the legitimacy of her child, and made an entail of his estates accordingly. After the Duke's death, in 1761, an action was commenced in behalf of the Duke of Hamilton, a minor, against Archibald, in which it was suggested that he was not the child of Lady Jane. The great Douglas cause, in consequence of its importance, occupied not only the Courts of Scotland, the Judges of which, by a casting vote only, gave their verdict for the Duke of Hamilton, but also the supreme tribunal of England, before which it came by appeal. Such was the fervour this cause occasioned in Scotland that Edinburgh was illuminated for three nights when the House of Lords, in January, 1769, had decided in favour of Mr. Douglas.—B.

^b Succeeded his father as 7th Baronet in 1772. The sudden death of this Baronet at Lawford Hall on 30th August, 1780, during his minority, caused an extraordinary sensation at the time of its occurrence. During an illness he took a draught from the hands of Lady Boughton, which had an almost immediate fatal effect. A suspicion of poison was subsequently attributed to his brother-in-law, Captain Donellan, which gained confirmation after disinterment of the body, and a coroner's inquest having returned a verdict of murder against Captain Donellan, he was tried at the Warwick Assizes before Mr. Justice Buller, and was found guilty, and executed on the 2nd April, 1781.

M. S.

HENRICI SPARKES HATCH,
Scholæ Rugbiensis Alumni.

Quem bonarum literarum studiis feliciter incumbentem

*Sua quoque disciplina carere noluit Christus

Sed leni primo manu arreptum atque excitatum

Divinæque suæ voci inter læta omnia assuefactum

Gravi tandem dolore lentique morbi cruciatibus

Quæ est Christianorum institutio

Diu tentatum

Ad suum suorumque exemplar informavit

Informatum brevi ad se accessivit

Vos autem tam boni sanctique adolescentis æquales

Si quando eum immatura abreptum morte

Vestro amicorum choro deesse dolebitis

At eidem exacto certamine victori

Exauctorato primis stipendiis Christi militi

Partam cœli quietem nolite invidere

Desiderandus quidem interiit sed non lugendus

Quippe talium est regnum dei

Vixit annos XIX. menses IX. diem 1.

M. S.

GEORGIU DOUGLAS PHILPOT,

Hujusce Scholæ per v. annos alumni;

Qui pene a cunabulis Christum Dominum secutus,

Postea cum ad cætum vestrum puer additus est,

Non secutus ipse tantum,

Verum alios quoque e vobis plurimos

Ad facile Illius jugum suscipiendum auxiliatus,

Omni deinde auctoritate, qua eum aut spectata pietas

Aut excelsior quem hic per biennium tenuit

Locus instruxerat

Ad unius Dei gloriam inter vos promovendum usus;

Tandem jam hinc Oxoniam transiturus,

Ad meliorem in cælis domum lethali est deductus morbo.
